

Norsk Grotteblad nr 40, Mars 2003

Oppdagelsen av Svarthamarhola

Discovery of Svarthamarhola.

The entrance had been known to the locals in Fauske. In August 1969 the cave was explored. A photo montage was published in the local newspaper. The writer took care not to give a precise description of the location. The cavers came under the ice, down to the sump, but had little equipment and were unable to map adequately.