

Norsk Grotteblad nr 42, Mai 2004

Dykkerulykke i fransk grotte

Diving accident in French cave

Two Swiss divers died in a cave with exit in the river Dordogne. The accident occurred in an air chamber where the divers probably took out their breathing valves, lost consciousness, fell into the water and drowned. The gas in the air chamber was found to be grossly deficient in oxygen.

Remember: Small air pockets often contain no breathable air. Never remove the valve from the mouth in such places